The story of travel involves more than a literal accord between passport and passport stamp—a journey to the other side of the world can carry a heavy emotional load. The most valuable elements on a compelling tale, your personal travel story, are evoked by the encounter with a different culture and landscape. The remarkable aspects of your journey have to be personalized and be understood in your own mold. By choosing carefully, you can mitigate those preconceptions. Think about what you take away from your trip and how you reflect upon your experiences. For some, this means traveling to Egypt.

The story of travel involves more than a ticket and a passport. It is the unfolding of stories — of lost and found love, of mystery and discovery, of the mystifying, iconic Sphinx that crouches nearby of the Pharaoh Khufu out of approximately 2.5 million stones. The Path to Khufu is lined with the ancient remains of pharaohs and queens. Then visit Cairo’s most famous mosque, the Mosque of Mohammed Ali. Continue to the grand Al-Rifai Mosque.
